

REMARKS

The Notice of Non-Responsive Amendment indicates that Applicants' January 29, 2010 Amendment was non-responsive because it deleted elected species A1 of S Block. Applicants respectfully disagree that the elected species was deleted.

On October 13, 2006, the Examiner issued a first Election Requirement between species A1 and species A2. On November 13, 2006, Applicants filed a first response in which species A1 was elected. It is apparently this first response to which the Examiner refers in the Notice of Non-Response Amendment. However, in electing between species A1 and A2, Applicants selected A1 because A2 required a homopolymer block H. The block copolymers currently recited in the claims are fully consistent with the election of species A1.

On March 19, 2007, the Examiner issued a second Election Requirement. The Examiner stated that "since claim 6 recites various copolymer species, including restricted species S-H (claim 5), additional species election in Category A becomes necessary." On April 19, 2007, in a second response, Applicants elected the copolymer represented by formula (6), that is, H-S-H. The second Election Requirement and second response clarify the meaning of Applicants' first response. Specifically, Applicants elect H-S-H.

The amended claims clearly include the elected species H-S-H. Accordingly, Applicants respectfully disagree with the Examiner's assertion that the amended claims delete the elected species.

Applicants submit that the January 29, 2010 Amendment was proper. During a brief discussion with the Examiner on June 23, 2010, the Examiner seemed to agree. An Office Action on the merits is respectfully requested.
